

Image Thresholding

Write a program to do the following:

- Read a greyscale image, or a color image and convert it to greyscale
- The program takes as input two values in the range 0 to 255 (thresholds)
- The program generated a new image containing only the pixels from the input image having values between the two threshold values. All other pixels are set to black